Human rights-based approach to integrated water resources management: Training manual and facilitator’s guide

Description / Abstract

The manual brings together two fields that, until recently, have been separate: human rights and integrated water resource management (IWRM).

This manual serves as a useful resource in transferring knowledge from professionals to those who work in water management and governance. The facilitator’s guide in the final chapter provides tested training tools for achieving the objectives of a HRBA to IWRM.
