

RESOURCE

The Recognition of Indigenous Customary Law in Water Resource Management

|

Author(s)

Craig, Donna Gachenga, Elizabeth

Description / Abstract

There is an inextricable link between indigenous rights, human rights and sustainable development. In this paper we consider the role of indigenous customary law in the sustainable management of water resources. We propose legal pluralism as the more effective context for recognition of indigenous customary law for sustainable water resource management as opposed to functional recognition or other minimalist forms of recognition.

Publication year

2010

Publisher

Water Law

Keywords

Water resource management customary law indigenous rights Human Rights Sustainable Development

Thematic Tagging

Climate Gender Transboundary Urban Water services Youth

Language English

View resource

Related IWRM Tools

Tool

Enabling Environment

A

Source <https://iwrmaactionhub.org/resource/recognition-indigenous-customary-law-water-resource-management-0>
URL: