

RESOURCE

Creating Communities of Practice

|

Author(s)

Johnson, Hazel

Description / Abstract

This paper examines the concept of 'communities of practice' for promoting joint learning and knowledge production for international development. How and why communities of practice may or may not lead to socially inclusive and innovative outcomes in the context of international development needs further exploration. The paper reflects on the conceptualization of communities of practice in the light of previous research into learning in state-private sector-civil society and North-South partnerships. It argues that the concept of communities of practice can be useful heuristically to understand joint learning and knowledge production if accompanied by other conceptual insights, for example, from critical participation and experiential or action learning. It also suggests that conceptualizing communities of practice as action learning spaces captures the often complex social relations and dynamics of learning and knowledge production for development.

Publication year

2007

Publisher

Progress in Development Studies

Keywords

Knowledge Management Critical Participation

Thematic Tagging

Water services

Language English

View resource

Related IWRM Tools

Tool

Communities of Practice

B4.03

---

Source URL: <https://iwrmaactionhub.org/resource/creating-communities-practice>